PREFACE.

The compilation of this manual has involved much labor, but it has been a labor of love. The historical sketch is a mere abridgment of the complete history by Dr. Tuttle, the delayed publication of which is to be regretted. The catalogue of names and dates is that whereon I have bestowed my labor. I have taken pains to verify dates, but the work was difficult, and there are doubtless inaccuracies. Mr. E. D. Halsey furnished the list of Trustees; and the narrative from 1862 is an abridgment of a fuller sketch prepared by him as a conclusion to Dr. Tuttle's history.

No manual of the church has been issued since 1832, the year in which the present church edifice was erected. That contained only the names of the membership of that time. Our church has more than a hundred years of history, and a long roll of honor; and this is a humble effort to put that history and roll of honor in a permanent and convenient shape for distribution and preservation among those most deeply interested. It is my offering of love to the people of my first and only charge.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

As early as 1730, a small settlement existed in the vicinity of Rockaway. When or by whom the Gospel was first preached in the place does not appear. Some of the people, among them Abner Beach and Job Allen, were members of the Presbyterian Church of Morristown, and probably Rev. Timothy Johnes, pastor of that church, and the Rev. Jacob Green, pastor of the Hanover Church, preached here occasionally, before a church was organized, as they did afterwards.

March the 2d, 1758, was the natal day of the Rockaway Presbyterian Church. On that day two important papers were drawn up, which put in practical shape the desire of the people to secure for themselves the privileges of the Gospel. One of these papers sets forth the "desier to Joyn with pasipaney to call and settle a minister ;" the other expresses the willingness of the subscribers to "ablig ourselves to pay toward building a meeting-house the sums to our names affixed." These two important papers will be printed entire in this manual.

The objects aimed at were realized, but not at once. The meeting-house was secured first. The subscription amounted to £75, equal to about $188, and was supplemented by a loan of £100 from Col. Jacob Ford, Sr., of Morristown. This loan, in part at least, was afterwards made a gift, through the influence of Moses Tuttle, of Mt. Pleasant, a son-in-law of Mr. Ford. The frame of the church was erected in 1759, and in 1760 it was enclosed and the floors laid. There was no plastering or ceiling, no stoves or fire-place, and only planks laid on blocks for seats. On the 24th of August, 1762, Benjamin Prudden conveyed to Willis Pierson, Job Allen and Obadiah Lum, Trustees of the parish of Rockaway, for the benefit and use of the Presbyterian Church of Roccaway, "the ten acres and thirty perch" of land which make up the old church lot.

It was not till 1768, that the "desier to Joyn with pasipaney to call and settle a minister" was realized—just ten years after that desire had first found expression. Negotiations begun at a parish meeting, Dec. 23d, 1766, finally resulted in the settlement of the first pastor of this church, the Rev. James Tuttle, Jr. April, 1768, he was ordained and installed at Parsippany over the two churches, and William Winds, Obadiah Lum, Jacob Allerton, David Beman and Benjamin Prudden, were appointed to attend the installation, and receive Mr. Tuttle on behalf of the Rockaway Church.

Mr. Tuttle was a native of Hanover, a son-in-law of Rev. Jacob Green, the pastor of that place, and a brother of Moses Tuttle, of Mt. Pleasant, an influential man in the parish of Rockaway. His pastorate continued for two years and seven months, when his death occurred at Hanover, Dec. 25th, 1770, in the 29th year of his age. His grave may be seen in the old burying ground at Hanover. Mr. Tuttle lived in the parsonage which the parish had built on the "Tom Mann lot"—near the present residence of Mr. Cortright. Lord Stirling had given to the parish of Rockaway, one hundred acres of land within one mile of the church, for parsonage purposes, and this spot had been selected and built on. The £60 salary paid Mr. Tuttle for the one-half of his time was raised by assessing the property of the members of the parish and levying a tax upon it. This assessment was made and the tax levied and collected by men appointed by the parish for that purpose. Some of these old assessments or "rate lists" are preserved in the parish records. This method of raising the minister's salary continued till Mr. Carle's time.

From Mr. Tuttle's death, in 1770, the church was without a pastor for nearly fourteen years. This period included the trying years of the war for independence. A number of efforts were made to obtain a pastor, but they all proved fruitless. Ministers were scarce, and the field was not a very inviting one. The people, however, were not left entirely without the preaching of the Gospel through those years of trial and discouragement. Occasional supplies were sent by the presbytery, and when these failed, the deacon's meeting was the unfailing substitute. The pulpit was occupied during this period by the following ministers :

Rev. Timothy Johnes, April 15th, 1770.

" Mr. Lewis, of Mendham, October, 1770.

" Mr. Chapman, of Orange, January, 1771.

" Mr. Horton, of Bottle Hill, (Madison,) April 9th, 1771.

" Mr. Kennedy, of Basking Ridge, July 11th, 1771.

" Mr. Simpson, July 25th, 1771.

Mr. Simpson preached twelve Sabbaths during the year 1772, and with such acceptance that assiduous efforts were made to secure him as pastor, but he finally declined the call. Rev. Mathias Burnet preached three times in 1773, and on the 17th of May, 1774, a call was made out for his pastoral services, which was declined. Thus the second effort ended in failure. During the year 1774, the pulpit was occupied thirteen times by different ministers. In 1775, one sermon by the Rev. Joseph Grover, of Parsippany, is all that is recorded. In 1776, Rev. Thaddeus Dodd preached two Sabbaths, and a Rev. Mr. Ackley, two Sabbaths. In 1777, a Mr. Galany (?) preached six Sabbaths. In May, 1777, an attempt was made to secure the services of Rev. Jno. Joline for three months, but failed, and in April, 1778, the effort was renewed to secure his services, which failed by reason of an offer from the church at Mendham, which he accepted. The parish next secured the services of a young Dutch minister, Mr. Derondy, who supplied the pulpit during the winter of 1778-9. On the 12th of April, 1779, Mr. Noble Everett was engaged to preach six months, and at the end of that time declined to serve the church any longer. During the following years of 1780, 1781 and 1782, the Rev. Lemuel Fordham supplied the pulpits of Succasunna and Rockaway, Rockaway refusing to join with Succasunna to settle him as joint pastor, and finally failing to secure his acceptance of their call to become the pastor of Rockaway, very much to their disappointment.

On the 17th of March, 1783, it was voted at a parish meeting to treat with the Rev. David Baldwin, who was preaching at Black River (Chester,) with reference to his serving the church at Rockaway. He gave the people little encouragement at the time, but in December, 1783, they gave him a call, and in February, 1784, Mr. Baldwin signified his acceptance of the call. He was installed as pastor of the church in April, 1784, by the Morris County Presbyterial Association—a kind of congregational secession under the leadership of Rev. Jacob Green, of Hanover, which this church had joined. His salary was fixed at £80 a year, the use of the parsonage, and his firewood. He lived in the parsonage near where the depot of the Morris and Essex Railroad now stands. Mr. Baldwin was a good man, but a very ordinary preacher. He took charge of the church at a time when its spiritual life was at a very low ebb. The members were few and mostly women, the congregations were small, and there was a widespread laxity of manners and morals. Society was suffering from the demoralization of the long war. In addition to the widespread infidelity of the times, and the general indifference to religion, there was internal dissension, which neutralized in a large measure, the efforts of the faithful pastor. The trouble arose out of the singing. The custom had long prevailed of reading the psalm line by line while singing, a custom which arose when there were no books for the people to sing out of. David Beman had long led the singing in the old way. A party, presumably of the young people, who had an ear for good music, attempted a change. Beman and his supporters stoutly resisted young Benjamin Jackson, the new candidate for the honors of chorister, and his party. The matter was compromised at first by allowing Beman to line out the psalm and sing in the first service, and Jackson to sing without lining in the second service. But this was not the end of the matter. The quarrel smouldered for years, occasionally breaking out with fury. In 1789 feeling ran so high that William Ross and David Beman resigned their eldership. But after hindering for a long time the prosperity of the church, the matter was finally settled in 1792, in favor of the new and better way.

During his ministry, Mr. Baldwin purchased a farm on the south side of the Denville road, near Savage Corner, and, moving upon it, supplemented his meagre salary by the pursuit of agriculture—dividing his time between his crops and his sermons.

The parish was incorporated according to the laws of the State in 1787. On the 6th of March of that year, the parish met and elected a Board of Trustees consisting of the following persons: William Winds, Stephen Jackson, Abraham Kitchel, Benjamin Beach, Job Allen, David Beman and David Baker; and a certificate of incorporation, under the name of the "First Presbyterian Church of Rockaway, in the County of Morris," was granted March 22d, 1787.

The church was in a very low state during the latter part of Mr. Baldwin's ministry, the attendance on Sabbath morning numbering scarcely thirty persons, and oftentimes less than that number; and in January, 1792, he submitted a proposition to be dismissed or retained as the parish might think proper. The parish voted to pay his salary to the 1st of June, and to give him liberty then to make other engagements. The pious and devotedly good old minister left the parish with the best of feeling between himself and the people.

On the 14th of May, 1792, it was voted to extend an invitation to Rev. John J. Carle to supply the pulpit for six months, and on the 18th of June, 1792, a unanimous call was extended to him to become pastor of the church. Mr. Carle accepted the call, and was ordained and installed in January, 1793. The exact date I am unable to find. This was the first ordination ever witnessed in Rockaway. Mr. Carle was popular in his manner and an eloquent preacher, and under his ministry the temporal prosperity of the church was increased, and the congregations became larger. Nothing had been done to render the church more comfortable and attractive since the beginning of Mr. Tuttle's ministry in 1768, when pews were put in, instead of planks, in some portions of the church. Encouraged by Mr. Carle's coming, to renewed effort, the people addressed themselves to the task of improving the church, and in 1794 the building was ceiled and the galleries put in, making it much more comfortable and commodious. The session of the church was also re-organized at this time, and regular records kept of their meetings. Elders existed before this time, but no sessional records are in existence previous to 1793, so far as I am able to discover. The following is the first record :

"Monday, February 25th, 1793. The church met at Mr. David Beaman's. Present, Messrs. Carle, David Beaman, Job Allen, John Clark, James Farris, William Ross and Samuel Beaman. The meeting was opened with prayer. It was unanimously agreed by this meeting to have a regular church session formed, in order to which, Messrs. David Beaman, Job Allen and John Clark were nominated as candidates for the office of Ruling Elder, and directed to be propounded the three ensuing Lord's days. Mr. David Beaman was also nominated as a candidate for the office of Deacon. The meeting agreed to consider all baptized persons belonging to this congregation as subjects of church discipline ; also agreed that all baptized parents who submit to the discipline of the church, are free from scandal, and live moral lives, may have the ordinance of baptism administered to their children."

In 1788 part of the parsonage-lands near the depot were sold to pay arrearages to Mr. Baldwin, and in 1792 the remainder was sold, and a new tract purchased at Franklin and another parsonage built. This house stood near by where Henry Palmer now lives, and was torn down when his present residence was built. Mr. Carle lived in the new parsonage till he purchased a house of his own in Rockaway. His salary was fixed at £100 when he first came, but was afterwards raised to £180 per year, "and to find himself in firewood." After he removed to Rockaway to live in his own house, the parsonage at Franklin was sold to Dr. Ebenezer H. Pierson, December, 1795, for $1100,

Mr. Carle's history is an unhappy one. While pastor at Rockaway he was given to indulgence in intoxicating drink, a prevalent custom of the times, and as the vice grew upon him it weakened and finally destroyed his influence. He was released from his pastoral relation in the spring of 1801, and went to Connecticut to take charge of a church. He died about 1808, and is buried at Basking Ridge, his native place. He belonged to an excellent and highly respected family, and his downfall was a source of great grief to them.

From the conclusion of Mr. Carle's pastorate to the coming of Rev. Barnabas King, six years elapsed, during which time the church was without a pastor. During this time there were occasional supplies, who were paid $5 a Sabbath for their services. Among the preachers of the years 1802, 1803 and 1804 are Rev. Messrs. Lemuel Fordham, Cram, James Richards, Amzi Armstrong, Aaron Condict, Mathias Burnet and Keys. Mr. Lewis Williams, an Englishman, preached six months in 1805, for which he received $180.

There is but one testimony as to the moral condition of the community after Mr. Carle was dismissed and until Dr. King came. It is said there was but a single Christian man within the wide bounds of the congregation who could offer a prayer in public or at the bedside of the dying. This was Deacon John Clark. Profaneness, drunkenness, Sabbath desecration and other forms of immorality were general. Dr. King speaks of religion at that time as "at a low ebb—almost as low as it could be, and not become extinct;" yet the fact remains that the people were determined to keep the church alive so far as they could do it by their contributions and attentions.

The first mention of Dr. Barnabas King in the parish records is this item: "1806, January 26th. Cash paid Mr. King for preaching one Sabbath, $4.50." He supplied the pulpit occasionally during that year and the next, but was not permanently employed until in October, 1807. From that time until his death, April 10th, 1862, a period of fifty-five years, the history of the church and his biography would be almost identical. A sketch of his life, written by Dr. Tuttle, was published by the New Jersey Historical Society in the second volume (new series) of its proceedings, and a sermon preached by Dr. King himself, on the fortieth anniversary of his pastorate, and containing a review of the history of the church during those forty years, was published; but a short sketch of his life before coming to Rockaway would not be out of place here.

He was the son of Amos King and his wife, Lucy Perkins, and was born at New Marlborough, Mass., June 2d, 1780. He received a good elementary education at a public school, where he attracted the favorable attention of his minister, Dr. Jacob Catlin, who, for his services about his place, prepared him for the freshman class of Williams College, to which he was admitted in the fall of 1800. He graduated in 1803, and studied theology with Dr. Catlin, being licensed to preach by the Berkshire Association in the fall of 1805. Having heard of "an open door in New Jersey," he immediately started on horseback to visit this county, and crossing the Hudson at Newburg, reached the house of Robert Ogden, in Sussex county, on Christmas day. Mr. Ogden received him into his family, and he began to preach statedly at Sparta and Berkshire Valley. He was thus engaged when he preached for the first time at Rockaway, as mentioned in the records. This was on Friday evening, January 24th, 1806, at a private house, and from the text Ecclesiastes iii., 21.

October 5th, 1807, the Trustees met and voted "to offer the Rev. Barnabas King $208, as a sallery for preaching in our meeting-house, for one-half of the time, for one year from and after the sitting of New York Presbytery in this present month." This offer was accepted, and the half of Mr. King's time not taken up by his services at Rockaway that year was given to Sparta and Berkshire Valley. "On careful inquiry it was found that the church consisted of thirty-five members, at the time he commenced preaching here, twelve of whom were widows." He began at once in the most systematic manner to minister to his new charge, preaching publicly and from house to house. The effect was soon apparent, and in 1808 there was a remarkable revival, which added eighty-four to the church, the larger part of whom were received into the church before Mr. King's ordination by Dr. Richards, of Morristown.

The Presbytery of New York ordained and installed Mr. King as pastor of this church, December 27th, 1808. Notwithstanding the severity of the weather and that there was no stove in the church, the exercises were very prolonged and the physical endurance of the candidate was noticeably taxed to its utmost. Rev. Dr. John McDowell, of Elizabeth, preached the sermon, Dr. Richards, the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Dr. Perrine, of Bottle Hill, the charge to the people.

After his ordination, the new pastor redoubled his efforts, which were very successful. Faithful and punctilious in his preparation for the pulpit, he was equally faithful in his other duties, visiting the home of every one, however humble, in his immense parish, which was at least ten miles in diameter. He frequently preached at private houses in the various neighborhoods, in the evening, after visiting among the people during the day. In his fortieth anniversary sermon he says, "I had six preaching places which were from four to six miles distant from the church. After two services in the church (on Sunday,) I preached at one of these and once or more on a week day. My object was to be at each of these preaching places at least as often as once in two weeks."

October 24th, 1809, Mr. King was married by Rev. Aaron Condict, to Miss Catherine Beach, daughter of Capt. Enoch Beach, of Hanover, an event which added much to his influence as a pastor. She often accompanied him on his visits to places of suffering and aided him in his ministrations. She died July 13th, 1821, lamented by the whole congregation, and seldom was there offered such a tribute to the memory of any one as to the memory of this estimable lady, so highly was she regarded by all who knew her. Her sister, Mrs. Electa Jackson, wife of Col. Joseph Jackson, also living at Rockaway, in 1815 started the first Sunday-school in Morris county, in the "Old Red School-house" near the church, which was torn down in 1853. Mrs. Jackson and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Clarissa (Jas.) Jackson, had previously gathered the neighboring children for religious instruction in their own homes.

The people began to repair the church soon after Mr. King came, and mention is frequently made in the minutes of the work. November 5th, 1821, it was resolved "that Joseph Jackson have leave to remove the canopy over the pulpit and lower the breast-work in front as low as Mr. King shall direct." "All to be done at his expense." In 1768, a resolution had been adopted "That a stove be allowed and that if it may be found pornitious that then on complaint that it may be so pornitious by any one (supposed to be a person of sense—erased) that then, in such case, it may be removed from thence by a future meetg. if proper." In

Mr. Carle's time a fire-place was attempted, but not until 1820 was any plan for warming the church carried out. A big stove was then bought at Mt. Hope, of McQueen & Co., and set up in the church, the pipe running out a window. In Sept., 1829, it was proposed to raise $350 to repair the meeting-house, but Nov. 1st, 1830, "the building committee" are allowed to use any part of the old for the purpose of building "the new meeting-house." The Winds farm, devised to the church by General Wm. Winds, and so much of the church lot as lies west of the Mt. Hope road, was sold about this time to pay arrears of salary and help in building. This house is the present brick edifice, and was dedicated Sept. 6th, 1832, after being about a year in progress of erection. The old church was on the knoll about fifty feet back of the new one.

After the revival of 1808, the membership of the church increased slowly, but in the fall of 1817, a revival which had been manifesting itself for some time, beginning in the Sabbath-school, became yet more decided and continued nearly through 1818. In these years one hundred and fifty-one persons were added to the communion of the church. 1831 and 1832 were again specially favored seasons. During this revival, which continued over a year, one hundred and forty-three persons united with the church.

In 1833 the Methodist Church was organized here. In 1834 the Dover Presbyterian Church was set off. And afterwards churches at Boonton and Mount Freedom. In the anniversary sermon before alluded to, delivered Dec. 31st, 1848, Mr. King says "five Presbyterian and five Methodist churches have been formed in our bounds and on our borders." He had then baptized five hundred and forty-seven children, solemnized four hundred and seventeen marriages, attended six hundred and eighty-one funerals, preached about twelve thousand times, and during his ministration here, six hundred and eighty had been added to the church.

In September, 1847, Rev. Joseph F. Tuttle was called as colleague pastor with Mr. King. He was the son of Rev. Jacob Tuttle, and was born at Bloomfield, N. J., in 1818. He received his preparatory education at the Academy at Newark, N. J., and Granville, Ohio; was graduated at Marietta College with the first honors of his class in 1841 and at Lane Theological Seminary in 1844. He was licensed by Marian Presbytery, April 4th, 1844; was married October 11th, 1845, to Miss Susan King, daughter of Rev. Barnabas King, and was ordained and installed pastor of the Second Church, in Delaware, Ohio, April 21st, 1846. He came to Rockaway, and began to labor here in November, 1847, and April 26th, 1848, was installed colleague pastor by the Presbytery of Rockaway. Rev. Samuel L. Tuttle, (his brother,) of Caldwell, preached the sermon, Rev. Daniel H. Johnson, of Mendham, delivered the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Sylvester Cook, of Wantage, the charge to the people.

From this time, although Dr. King continued to share the burden of the ministerial labor, preaching frequently, both in the church and at the out stations, and making frequent parochial visits, the larger part of the labor gradually devolved upon his colleague.

Dr. Tuttle was an indefatigable worker, eloquent in the pulpit, devoted to his church and people, and eminently successful. Though there were no large revivals such as the church enjoyed in 1818 and 1832, yet the lists show a constant and regular increase of membership. He attached his people, both old and young, closely to him, and was influential and useful in the Presbytery. He refused several very flattering calls, but in 1862 was tendered the presidency of Wabash College, which he felt it his duty to accept—and after fifteen years' labor here he asked to have the relation dissolved. Dr. King at the same time made the same request. The parish meeting to consider these resignations occurred March 20th, 1862, and was largely attended. The people resolved unanimously not to accept Dr. King's resignation, affectionately expressing their will that he should continue their pastor until death should terminate the relation. When the result of the meeting was announced to him, he said, as tears ran down his face, "they have always been a kind people," and probably this was the happiest moment of his long official connection with the church. A few days after, April 10th, Dr. King died at the residence of his son-in-law, and on the 15th, was buried here. His funeral sermon, preached by his late colleague, was printed with the farewell sermon of Dr. Tuttle, delivered April 27th, 1862.

Perhaps the following facts in the history of Rockaway, which had their influence upon the parish, may not be uninteresting. At the time of the Revolutionary War, Lord Stirling was carrying on the furnace at Hibernia. John Jacob Faesch carried on the furnace, &c., at Mount Hope, under a lease from Col. Jacob Ford, Sr. Col. Jacob Ford, Jr., had forges at Denmark, Middle Forge and Mt. Pleasant. Stephen Jackson and David Beaman had the forge above the bridge in Rockaway, and a grist-mill on the west bank of the river near the end of the present dam. In 1785 the grist-mill opposite Dr. Jackson's present residence was built. In 1794 Stephen Jackson built the lower forge at Rockaway. In 1821 Joseph and William Jackson built the rolling-mill. In 1815, the Mt. Hope furnace, having been idle over fifteen years, (since the death of Faesch,) was leased and set at work by Robert McQueen & Co., consisting of Robert McQueen, Abraham Kinney and Eliphalet Sturtevant. The company continued to operate it until 1827, when the furnace finally blew out.

In 1828 the Morris canal was surveyed, and its building commenced. It was completed for travel in 1832. In 1848 the Morris and Essex railroad was continued from Morristown to Dover : previous to that time a stage route from Newark, by way of Bloomfield and Parsippany, passed through the village, carrying the mail and passengers.

About 1835, Joseph C. Righter built his foundry on Berry's Brook, and further up on the same stream a manufactory still standing west of the church-lot. In 1845 James Fuller and Mahlon Hoagland built the foundry which was burned in 1851, and rebuilt by Freeman Wood. In 1855 the Rockaway Manufacturing Company was chartered. It rebuilt and enlarged the rolling-mill, putting in steam-power, &c., but soon failed.

In 1856 the Iron Bank was organized and started here as a State bank, but was shortly afterwards carried to Morristown.

The pastoral relation between Dr. Joseph F. Tuttle and the church was dissolved by the presbytery of Rockaway in April, 1862, and on April 27th following he preached his farewell sermon.

On the 5th of May, 1862, the Session and Trustees voted to invite Mr. S. P. Halsey, a student in Union Theological Seminary, to supply the pulpit for two months. Mr. Halsey accepted the invitation, and preached his first sermon May 11th. His preaching was so acceptable that at a parish meeting, June 12th, Rev. B. C. Magie, presiding, a unanimous call was extended to him to become pastor at a salary of $600 per annum.

On the 8th day of July, 1862, Mr. Halsey, having accepted the call, was ordained and installed pastor of the church.

Rev. Samuel P. Halsey was born at Avon, N. Y., August 11th, 1834, and on his mother's side was descended from Deacon Ross, one of the founders of the church. He prepared for college at a classical school at Rochester, N. Y., and at Lodi, Mich., and entered Michigan University in 1855. On leaving that institution he began the study of law, and was admitted in the city of Brooklyn, February 12th, 1858. Becoming converted in the spring of that year, he felt it to be his duty to preach the gospel, and accordingly entered Union Theological Seminary in the fall of 1859, and graduated from that institution in May, 1862. In 1863 he was married to Miss Margaret P. Bowers, of Brooklyn. In September, 1862, his salary was raised to $700, and in September, 1864, it was further raised to $1000.

Receiving a call from the First Presbyterian Church of Stamford, Conn., December 25th, 1864, Mr. Halsey concluded to accept it, and at his request the parish united with him, January 12th, 1865, in asking Presbytery to dissolve the relation, which was done at a meeting of Presbytery in Rockway, January 17th following.

The ministry of Mr. Halsey lay wholly within the time of the war, and religion in the hearts of pastor and people often assumed the form of patriotism. The church grew in numbers, and a powerful revival was experienced in the winter of 1863-4, in which many, especially from the Sunday-school, were converted. During his ministry, twenty-nine were received into the church by profession, and nine by letter—thirty-eight in all. After two years' service at Stamford, Mr. Halsey resigned his charge there on account of ill health, and since November 3d, 1869, has been pastor of what is now the Franklin Avenue Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn.

Dr. George Jones, a Methodist minister, practicing medicine in Rockaway, frequently supplied the pulpit after Mr. Halsey's departure, and his sermon upon the death of Mr. Lincoln will be remembered as one occasion of many in which he served the church in an emergency.

At a meeting of the Session and Trustees, April 11th, 1865, it was resolved to employ Rev. Wm. E. Honeyman, a graduate of Princeton, Class of 1861, as stated supply for three months, at the rate of $800 a year. Before the expiration of this time, at an adjourned parish meeting, May 29th, a call was extended to Mr. Honeyman. There being some want of unanimity in the congregation, he was not installed, but the Presbytery meeting at Rockaway, August 23d, he was ordained as an evangelist, and continued to preach as stated supply until April 1st, 1866, when he preached for the last time, owing to some disagreement between him and the Trustees. On the next Sabbath, Dr. Thornton Mills occupied the pulpit, and at the close of the morning service read a letter from Mr. Honeyman, declining to act any longer as supply.

During the year 1865 the cemetery was put in such shape that deeds could be given for lots, and a system organized for its care in the future. The work was begun in 1860, under the direction of Mr. J. B. Bassinger, who employed a civil engineer, Mr. Henry L. Southard, to survey the church property and plot the graveyard.

During the summer of 1861, through the personal appeals of Dr. Tuttle, the people turned out with teams and very greatly improved the cemetery—putting it very much in its present shape. The work was completed in 1865, and a committee of three of the Trustees, called the Cemetery Committee, has since that time had the management of this part of the church property.

In 1865, at the suggestion of Mr. Honeyman, the singing was improved by the introduction of the “Songs of the Sanctuary.” Up to that time, “Watts and Select Hymns” had been used, the choir selecting the tunes according to their own judgment.

In the spring of 1866, a slate roof was put upon the church at an expense of $698, and during the summer the work of improvement was continued by painting the inside of the church, lowering the galleries, reseating the auditorium, &c. June 17th, 1866, Rev. O. H. Perry Deyo preached his first sermon in the church, and continued to supply the pulpit thereafter. Sept. 19th, 1866, at a parish meeting, the officers of the church were instructed to employ Mr. Deyo as stated supply, at a salary of $1000 per annum, till further action could be taken. October 2d, 1866, they invited him to supply the pulpit for six months, and he accepted.

From October 21st, 1866 to March 14th, 1867, the congregation worshipped in the school-house, owing to the repairs then being made on the church. On the latter date the repainted and refitted church was rededicated to Almighty God, and a debt of $2050 raised—making the whole amount expended on the church $5000—a sum equal to its entire first cost.

While the congregation was worshipping in the school-house, a revival occurred, exceeding in intensity and power anything experienced in many years. The pastor was indefatigable in his labors and the church was blessed in an unusual degree.

On the 7th of March, 1867, at a parish meeting held in the school-house, it was unanimously voted to extend a call to Mr.

Deyo to become pastor of the church, at a salary $1200 per annum. The call was accepted, and on the 30th of April, he was regularly installed by the Presbytery.

Rev. O. H. Perry Deyo, thus installed seventh pastor of the church, was born in 1817, at Highlands, opposite Fishkill, on the Hudson, in New York. He united with the church at twenty years of age, and studied for the ministry, principally with Rev. Mr. Wilde. He was licensed as an evangelist by the North River Presbytery, at Amenia, Dutchess county, N. Y., in 1855, where he labored for about a year. He had declined to be installed a pastor till he accepted the invitation of this church. His ministry here was very successful, and resulted in gathering into the church eighty-four by profession and fourteen by letter, and in quickening and elevating the piety of the people.

In 1868, the location of the church lines was accurately determined, and a map and survey signed by the Trustees and adjoining owners was recorded in the Registry of Deeds in the County Clerk's office, Book H 7, page 109.

In 1871, the road in front of the church was thrown out to its present place instead of winding up near the church. From March 20th, 1871 to May 29th, the sum of $837 was expended on the work of building the wall and filling and grading the road, under the supervision of Mr. Deyo, but the present grade was not established until the front fence was built in 1874.

At the parish meeting, September 21st, 1870, Elder Samuel B. Halsey expressed a desire to see some steps taken to secure a parsonage while he was yet living, and offered a lot and a sum of money, provided $4000 should be raised, including his subscription, within a year thereafter. Mr. Halsey died in September, 1871, but his administrators, manifesting a desire to carry out his purpose, the Board of Trustees, February 19th, 1872, resolved to proceed with the work.

On March 11th following, $4175 had been subscribed by twenty-six individuals, and a building committee consisting of Dr. Columbus Beach, Mahlon Hoagland and Charles C. De Hart, was appointed, under whose supervision the building was prosecuted during the summer of 1872 and the following winter and summer, till its completion. The whole cost was reported December 1st, 1873, to be $5340; but the deficiency of $1100 was provided for in two notes of $700 and $400, the former of which was paid next year by the congregation, and the latter by the Cemetery Committee, out of their funds, in 1879. The whole cost of the parsonage to the present date—exclusive of the lot, the fence, the grading, and the barn built in 1877—was $5600.

At the parish meeting, September 18th, 1872, a resolution was carried to fix the minister's salary at $1000 instead of $1200—in view of the financial burdens of the parish. Mr. Deyo feeling aggrieved that this action should have been taken without consulting him, tendered his resignation through Rev. B. C. Magie, who occupied the pulpit the ensuing Sabbath, September 29th. At a parish meeting October 2d, the people refused to assent to Mr. Deyo's request for them to unite in asking Presbytery to dissolve his pastoral relation with them. Presbytery being at a loss how to act, sent Rev. Dr. Ogden, of Chatham, and Mr. Jeremiah Baker, of Madison, as a committee of investigation. This committee met the Session and Trustees, October 7th, and after conference with them reported to Presbytery, whereupon the relation was dissolved, and the pulpit, by direction of Presbytery, declared vacant by the Rev. Daniel Magie, of Boonton, October 20th, 1872.

After Mr. Deyo's departure, the Rev. O. S. St. John, who was on the editorial staff of the "New York Witness," was employed as stated supply until July, 1873; such candidates as the church desired to hear, having the pulpit as occasion required.

From this time till the end of the year, the pulpit was supplied by Rev. Pearce Rogers, of Mine Hill, excepting on particular Sabbaths when candidates or visiting ministers were heard.

At the annual parish meeting, September 17th, 1873, the Cemetery Committee were authorized to purchase adjoining lands from Abraham W. Shawger, which was done, and some three acres added to the cemetery. The price of lots was then raised from six to ten cents per superficial foot.

March 15th and 22d, 1874, Mr. David E. Platter, a student in Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio, occupied the pulpit, and on Sunday, April 19th, after morning service, a parish meeting was held, at which a unanimous call was extended to him with a salary of $1200 and the parsonage. A subscription was taken up at once, which amounted to the sum fixed. On Sunday, April 14th, Mr. Platter's acceptance was laid before the officers of the church, to take effect June 14th, 1874. On the 7th of June, Mr. Rogers, who had so long and faithfully served as supply that he had come to be considered as almost a settled pastor, preached his farewell sermon. As the fruit of a deep religious interest manifest during his ministry, fourteen persons were admitted into the church on the first day of Mr. Platter's ministry.

Rev. David Edwin Platter, the eighth and present pastor of the church, was born near Locust Grove, in Adams county, Ohio, Jan. 25th, 1849. He prepared for college at Salem Academy, South Salem, Ohio, and entering the freshman class at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1867, graduated in 1871. In the fall of that year he entered Lane Seminary, at Cincinnati, Ohio. During the vacation of 1872, he supplied the Presbyterian Church of Mt. Leigh, Ohio, and during the vacation of 1873, the Presbyterian Church of Eckmansville, in the same State. Graduating from the seminary in the spring of 1874, and having already accepted the call to Rockaway, he immediately took charge of the church, preaching his first sermon, June 14th. He was licensed by the Presbytery of Portsmouth, in the spring of 1873, and ordained and installed by the Presbytery of Morris and Orange, July 22d, 1874. He was married to Miss Susan Hutchings, of Bermuda, December 18th, 1877. Since his installation, including the fourteen already mentioned, one hundred and twenty persons have united with the church.

Of his own ministry it becometh him not to speak, other than to thank God for putting him into this ministry.

At a parish meeting held Thursday evening, May 13th, 1880, it was resolved to build a session-house, and $2300 was pledged for that purpose by the persons present. The following Sunday morning this subscription was increased, and soon after the work was begun. Messrs. Dr. Columbus Beach, Mahlon Hoagland and James H. Bruen, were appointed a Building Committee, and under their hands the building is fast approaching completion.

Dated September 27th, 1880.

CATALOGUE No. 1.

An Alphabetical Catalogue of Persons who belonged to the Rockaway Parish previous to the year 1808.

The object of this catalogue is to give and preserve the names of all those who were in any way associated with the early history of the church, either as attendants, contributors to its support or members in full communion. As no sessional records were kept previous to the year 1793, it is impossible to determine accurately who were members of the church as well as of the parish, and who were members of the parish only. Many took an interest in and helped the church financially, and held pews in it, who were not communicants. In this list communicants are distinguished from adherents by a star attached to their names. Those only are thus marked who are known to have been communicants. The date attached to the name is when it is first found in the parish records. In most cases it is only an approximate date, as related to the association of the person with the church. All names dated 1758 are those of persons associated with the first organization of the church.

NOTE.—The date 1793, occurring so often in this list, is that of a subscription to build a parsonage at the beginning of Mr. Carle's ministry. The list contains about one hundred names, and is preserved in the parish records. It shows what persons composed the parish at that time.
